So I Think There Was a Lot of Conversation around the Financial Backing between Asia Edge and How It Competes with the Belden Road Initiative I Think What People Looking for Is Turning Concepts into Action Mm-Hmm and I Think the More Wins if We Put on the Board some Very Tangible Actions whether that Be a Floating Regas Unit Somewhere That Is Tied to a Utility Provider in Region That Starts To Electrify a Country That Doesn't Have the Infrastructure They Don't Have To Be Big Wins I Just Think There Have To Be some Wins

And I Think that's Part of this Is Energy Security I Think It's about Energy Going from Being an Export to an Import and I Think the Energy Mix Is Changing So I Think It's about Us Partnering To Put some Wins on the Board I Probably Should Use the Rugby Analogy Not Anymore Not in Cricket or Baseball Analogy but I Think It's a Pace at Which We Do some of these Things and Let's Get Something Done Let's Get Something Actually over the Finish Line I Think some of the Countries You Mentioned Will Look to Us and Say Hey I Actually Quite like the Way no Way that Solution Was Created It's More Innovative

I See a Gentleman Here in the Third Row if You Could Identify Yourself First Sir and Ask a Question Can't My Record Again Currently As Much Natural Gas Is Flared in the Permian Basin as all of Central and South American Consume Should We Maybe Apply to the Chinese for Funds under the BRI To Develop Our Infrastructure Namely Pipelines so that Gas Can Be Made Available to Customers Worldwide I Don't Think You Have To Look at China To Fund that I Think There Are a Lot of those Countries Would Act like Actually like Access to that Resource It's about the Pace at Which We Build Infrastructure Out inside the Domestic United States That's Not Always an Easy Thing To Do

That's for a Lot of these Countries You Can't Sell Your Product until that Capacity Building Being Regulatory or Elsewhere Something Else Is Finished So I Would Assume that They're Going To Be Focusing a Lot on Capacity Building You Don't Always Have To I Think that's another Example of Partnership because We've Been Doing that in some of these Countries for Multiple Decades It Might Not Be in Electrification but We've Been Doing It in Resource Development We've Got Nationalization of Jobs Building Job Capability Building Skills Local Content Stimulating Local Economies those Are all Things We've Been Doing from all from Decades
